

i am writing to express my displeasure at sinclair broadcasting's decision to broadcast "stolen honor" at many of its stations. this is obviously a political move, and reveals the dangers of media consolidation. if they wish to broadcast something that is so blatantly against a candidate for president, at this critical time in our nation's history (ie, right before the elections) they should at least try to balance it by showing "going upriver" which is in favor of that candidate, to be fair. otherwise, it's just one long advertizement for bush, masquerading as a tv show, and that doesn't seem right.
